“Tiffany’s projects are inspiring, fun, and easy to make. In other words, Tiffany is the Martha Stewart of garbage.” — Shawn Connally, Make Magazine

ReMake It!

By Tiffany Threadgould

Did you ever think the oval opening in the lid of a tissue box could become a picture perfect frame? Or how about the sleeve of an old T-shirt becoming a nifty little drawstring pouch? It’s a cinch! Everyone green and crafty knows vintage LP covers, empty tissue boxes, and broken umbrellas are not trash--they're treasures! ReMake It! (Sterling Books, March 2011) author Tiffany Threadgould lives to turn this junk into something fabulous, and in this book are her one-of-a-kind creations. ReMake It! presents 95 cool eco-smart projects--like turning an oatmeal container into a super-cute tote or creating a picture frame from an old pair of eyeglasses. Step-by-step instructions, plus a Stitchionary and fantastic full-color photos of each project, make it easy and fun to get creative ...with stuff that's FREE!

About the Author

Tiffany Threadgould is a design junkie who gives scrap materials a second life. She thinks that garbage has feelings too and sometimes can be found talking to her pile of junk at her design studio in Brooklyn, NY. Tiffany is the founder of RePlayGround (www.replayground.com), where you can find ReMake It recycling kits and oodles of DIY projects. She’s also the head of design at TerraCycle (www.terracycle.net). Her recycled crafts have been featured in the New York Times, Everyday with Rachael Ray, and Time Out New York. She has appeared on CNN and on the National Geographic 4-part special, Garbage Moguls. (www.natgeotv.com/garbage)
